D REPLY ON SARMAMENT AWAITED

Man, Korea, Dec. 10.—(AP)—United Nations command to demand an answer tomorrow from the Communists on the proposal to start immediate negotiations for exchange of prisoners of war in Korea. There was indication what the Red reply was. The Reds have stood pat on their demand that the U. N. accept their proposal for behind-the-scenes inspection by representatives of neutral nations before discussing prisoners.

N. negotiators said the matter is under study.

in Tokyo, the United Nations Monday night lambasted the Communists in one of the bitterest attacks from an Allied source. It said the Reds of holding U. N. members for blackmail and ran to win their point on the issue of policing and armistice. Allies in effect told the Communists at Panmunjom Monday quit stalling on the prisoner exchange.

ey told the Reds that an Allied officer will be in Panmunjom at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday (8:30 p. m. EST Monday) for their answer.

And a one-man U. N. subcommittee will be ready to start negotiations for the exchange of prisoners 2 1/2 hours later.

Joint subcommittees working on arrangements for enforcing a Korean armistice met only 41 minutes Monday. They quit as far apart as ever but they scheduled another session for 11 a. m. Tuesday (9 p. m. EST Monday).

While the Allies moved to force a decision on the prisoner of war issue, Communist negotiators insisted the U. N. answer their proposal for behind-the-scenes inspection by representatives of neutral nations.

They were told the matter still is under serious study because of its many ramifications.

House Wants Another Look At Senate—Passed $113 Million Patchwork State Tax Program

Harrisburg, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Republican House leaders wanted another look today at a senate-passed $113 million patchwork tax package before sending it to Gov. John S. Fine for signature.

Of particular interest to them was the senate plan to cut appropriations by $32 million in connection with the tax program as a means of balancing the governor's $1,220,000,000.

The appropriation reductions were tied directly into the tax package when the senate broke its long deadlock on taxes last week.

A GOP House leader, who declined quotation by name, said House concurrence in senate amendments to the tax package, which had previously passed the lower branch, was contingent on its acceptance of the budget cuts.

Fine told the Pennsylvania Society at New York Saturday night that the tax package was the "foul tax offspring of compromise and expediency."

"This odorous tax structure, which is now thrust upon us, simply postponed for only one year the imposition of a broad base tax," he said.

Fine later told a news conference he expected the House to concur this week in the senate's budget-balancing program. The House action would bring to a formal ending the legislature's nine-month fiscal stalemate.

The governor also told newsmen he expects to call public hearings soon on a controversial bill to increase truck weight limits in Pennsylvania. The measure, which would boost the permissible weight loads of commonly-used commercial carriers from 45,000 to 60,000 pounds, is now awaiting senate concurrence in House amendments.

Fine also predicted that the senate would finally confirm this week the appointment of Milo F. Draelm as secretary of forests and waters in his cabinet.

Senate disposal of the tax problem is expected to facilitate quick action in permitting the lawmaking to meet a Dec. 22 adjournment deadline.

One possible obstacle, however, is the special senate investigation starting tomorrow, of charges by Sen. John J. Haluska (D-Cambria) that he was offered a bribe to vote for the discarded proposal for a one-half of one per cent income tax.

A final vote is expected in the lower branch on a bill to require all public employees, including teachers, to take a loyalty oath. Mass demonstrations are expected here today and tomorrow to oppose or support the bill.

SORDONI NOT ANXIOUS FOR HIGHWAY JOB

Harrisburg, Dec. 10.—(AP)—State Commerce Secretary Andrew J. Sordoni says he would "prefer not to be considered" as a successor to the late Ray F. Smock as state highways secretary.

The name of the former state senator entered speculation over the vacancy after Sordoni and Gov. John S. Fine were interviewed at the 53rd annual dinner of the Pennsylvania Society in New York over the weekend.

Although the governor has not offered him the post, Sordoni let it be known that his statement did not mean that "I won't accept if it is offered."

Fine said he thought Sordoni preferred not to be considered.

January Inductees to Harrisburg

Announcement of Warren county quotas for actual induction into Armed services during January was received today by Melvin Keller, Selective Service chairman.

Keller announced today that young men will be chosen to go from Warren on the evening of January 17, for Harrisburg, and January 18, for Erie. Those sent for pre-induction examinations will all go to Harrisburg instead of to Erie.

Our young men will leave for the morning train, December 19, for actual induction at 10 a. m.

They are to meet at the Pennsylvania Railroad station at 10 a. m.

Eisenhower Backers Pin Lot of Hopes in New Hampshire Primary in March

Washington, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Republicans seeking their party's presidential nomination for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower may put a lot of their political eggs in the March 11 New Hampshire primary.

The prevailing opinion among Eisenhower rooters now appears to be that the general will say nothing if his name is entered on the Republican ticket, awaiting results of the New Hampshire vote before taking any public statement.

Senator Carlson (R-Kan.), latest of the Eisenhower camp's leaders, said the general at his North Atlantic Treaty Organization (ATO) headquarters in Paris, apparently doesn't look for any action.

Senator Duff (R-Pa.), another of the leaders, has delayed making a trip to Paris which he had scheduled this month. Duff has it known he fully expects to get a political go-ahead signal from the general when he does.

Edward Bacon and Ralph Imboden, Eisenhower backers in Wisconsin, told reporters they would opt for the general's silence in New Hampshire as an indication he is the race and would proceed in there.

The general's name can't go on Wisconsin ballot, however, until he files an affidavit that he is undivided by January 15. Thus a technically uninstructed slate might have to be organized for elections are expected to be filed out Eisenhower's name on both Republican and Democratic tickets in New Hampshire. They are to be filed by January 30 and general would then have 10 days in which to withdraw his name, if he chose.

Publisher Is Named To Succeed Wherry

Lincoln, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Fred A. Seaton, Hastings, Neb., publisher today was appointed U. S. senator from Nebraska to succeed the late Republican floor leader, Senator Kenneth S. Wherry. The appointment was made by Republican Governor Val Peterson.

Seaton, 42, will serve until a successor is elected at the general election next November and qualified by the state canvassing board.

He is a midwest leader of the Harold E. Stassen for president forces and has served two terms as a state senator in the Nebraska one-house legislature.

Before coming to Nebraska as publisher of the Hastings Tribune, Seaton was active in his home state of Kansas in the Alf Landon presidential campaign. He now has publishing interests in Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, Wyoming and Colorado.

Pilot Arrested for Flying While Drunk After Crashing Plane Near Dallas, Tex.

Dallas, Ga., Dec. 10.—(AP)—"He's got us stumped," said Police Chief Lottie, referring to the flier he arrested for drunkenness after a plane crash yesterday.

"He missed the airport by nearly two miles," Smith related. "As a matter of fact, he was so drunk he didn't even know we had an airport."

The chief said the flier's name is Bob Cabaniss and he cracked up a small plane in a plowed field half a mile from the Paulding county courthouse and just beyond a residential area.

"He had a gash on his forehead it took two stitches to close, but he wasn't complaining of pain," Smith continued.

"We aren't sure where he's from. He told me he was from Atlanta. He told the sheriff he was from Macon, Ga. He told the state patrol he was from somewhere else. In all, I think he's given about 16 different home towns."

"Nope," replied Smith. "He didn't have a pilot's license. He didn't even have a driver's license."

Los Angeles Area Has Coldest Dec. 9 in 75-Year History

By The Associated Press
Shrieking winds swept southern California today, flailing crops, sandblasting automobiles and snarling transportation—air, sea and land.

Blasts up to 75 miles an hour whipped the smoke from smudges pots with which growers fought to save their crops from temperatures that plummeted as low as 15 degrees Sunday.

Gale-whipped desert sands scoured the paint from automobiles in the San Bernardino area. The wind stripped palm trees, littered highways so badly that many were closed to traffic. Air travel was shut down. Toppled powerlines cut off electricity to sections of San Bernardino, Ontario, Sun Valley, Canoga Park and Reseda.

Sunday was the coldest Dec. 9 in the Los Angeles weather bureau's 75-year history, with 32.

Many Are Dead In Philippine Typhoon

Manila, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A raging tropical typhoon ripped through the central Philippines today. It killed at least 14 persons, left thousands homeless and wrecked millions of dollars worth of crops and buildings.

As the 125-mile-an-hour storm churned into the Sulu Sea, AP Correspondent Frank A. White reported from Cebu City on Cebu Island, that at least 12 persons were dead and hundreds homeless. White said virtually every building made of light materials was partially wrecked and many large structures lost roofs or sustained other damage. Cebu bore the brunt of the storm.

The Philippine news service reported two persons killed and 17 injured at Iloilo, on the southern tip of Panay Island west of Cebu. The news service said thousands were homeless.

On Negros Island, between Cebu and Panay, the news service estimated property damage in Bacolod city at a quarter million dollars and said 2,250 were reported homeless.

Radio communications with most of the devastated central islands were disrupted. Authorities feared casualties would be heavy.

Truman Back in the Capital Calls Important Conferences To Review the World Situation

Washington, Dec. 10.—(AP)—President Truman reviewed the world situation, with particular emphasis on the Korean truce negotiations, at a White House conference today with his military and diplomatic advisers.

One of the matters presumably discussed was what course the United States should follow if the present Korean peace talks fail to produce a complete armistice by Dec. 27, the deadline set by truce negotiators when the issue of a buffer zone across Korea was settled on Nov. 27.

Mr. Truman cut short his Florida vacation by a week to fly back yesterday for this and other conferences.

Meeting with Mr. Truman were Secretary of Defense Lovett, Undersecretary of State Webb, the secretaries of the three armed services and the members of the joint chiefs of staff.

Seeking to allay tension which grew out of the sudden announcement Saturday that he was flying back to Washington, Mr. Truman told reporters Sunday:

"There is nothing wrong—don't get into your minds that the world is coming to an end."

The Korean truce negotiations had top billing on the agenda for the White House meeting.

Mr. Truman also disclosed that he will follow up the study of the delicate international situation with a conference with Attorney General McGrath and other officials of the Justice Department which will presumably cover a congressional investigation into federal tax scandals.

Asked by reporters, who interviewed him when he landed at the (Turn to Page Eleven)

Hunting Accidents Claim 3 Nimrods

Pittsburgh, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Accidental shootings killed three western Pennsylvania hunters over the weekend. Police Chief Wilbur Bliss of Indiana township said George Fischer, 13, of Saxonsburg RD 11, was unloading a rifle which discharged and killed his father, Charles Fischer, 46, while they were hunting deer.

Charles Herman Matlick, 15, of Fairchance, near Uniontown, died yesterday in Uniontown Hospital of a shotgun wound he suffered while hunting in West Virginia. Police said his gun discharged when he dropped it.

Lawrence Deptule, 16, Erie, died yesterday from a wound received while hunting deer near Kane. State police said Robert H. Fullerton, 17, also of Erie, tripped over a tree stump and his rifle discharged. Accidental shooting verdicts were issued in all three cases.

ARMED GUARD PLACED OVER ALLEGED STABBER

Pittsburgh, Dec. 10.—(AP)—An armed guard watched today over a 55-year-old carpenter who police said stabbed himself and his ex-wife while the nude body of another woman lay under the bed in his room.

Detective John Stack said John DeLong is in critical condition from a slashed throat and eight stab wounds. Stack said DeLong stabbed himself after cutting Mrs. Lena DeLong, 42. She is in fair condition.

Stack said DeLong fled after stabbing his wife and police who went to his room searching for him found the nude body of Mrs. Clara Peterson, 41, under the bed. Police Lieutenant Jewey McCullough said Mrs. Peterson, a neighbor of Mrs. DeLong, died from acute gastro-enteritis (inflammation of the stomach).

McKinney Denies Political Influence In Fast Investment

Washington, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Frank E. McKinney, Democratic national chairman, said today he and Frank M. McHale, his close political friend, each made a fast $68,000 profit on investments of $1,000 apiece made in 1946.

McKinney told a news conference "no political influence or improperly were involved."

Angry he charged that newspaper headlines describing the profit were so phrased they might make his children "think their father was a damn crook."

Records of a bankruptcy proceedings in Philadelphia give McKinney's profit as $74,000 on the $1,000 invested in common stock of the Empire Tractor Co., of Philadelphia, but McKinney said that figure is "inaccurate."

"Is it criminal, is it unlawful for a Democratic chairman to hold business interests?" McKinney demanded at the news conference.

Telegrams Announcing Safe Arrival of Company I Members Being Received

Several Warren county families received cablegrams over the week-end, announcing the safe arrival in Bremerhaven, Germany, of husbands and sons who had originally been members of Warren's own Company I. The news indicated that practically the last units of the 28th Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, to leave Camp Atterbury, Ind., had arrived overseas.

The local company was called to active duty in September, 1950, and the Warren county men have been at Camp Atterbury, Ind., since that time, although the original Company I now contains but few of its original members. Only an office clean-up detail of the 28th remains at Camp Atterbury, the units having been sent out gradually until the final embarkation about 10 days ago at Norfolk, Va.

One of the cablegrams, that received by Mr. and Mrs. A. M. McDannel, 704 Conewango avenue, was of particular significance because it contained a birthday greeting for Mr. McDannel, who celebrates today, from his son, Sgt. 1/C Jack McDannel, who will observe his own twenty-second birthday next Sunday.

RESIDENCE IS COMPLETELY RANSACKED

Possessions whose value closely approached $1,000 and which were as widely diversified in character as a diamond dinner ring and a wicker basket were stolen in a household robbery reported to Borough police at 12:30 a. m. Sunday and perpetrated late Saturday night at the 10 Beaty court residence of Holger N. Elmquist, vice president of the Warren Bank and Trust Company.

Entrance to the Elmquist home was gained by breaking the glass in the window of a first floor lavatory and the removal of the lower part of an inside ventilator. A brick was used in breaking the glass.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmquist, who had left home about 6:30 p. m., returned shortly after midnight to find the house completely ransacked.

Borough Police Chief Mike Evans was reticent this afternoon about divulging any clues which may have been found, but it is known that he is conducting a thorough and extensive investigation.

Although a Singer electric sewing machine and a Martha Washington sewing cabinet, the heavier articles stolen, could have been lifted by a lone burglar, the thoroughness with which the Elmquist home was ransacked would indicate that more than one person was involved, with the probability that a car or truck was parked in close proximity to the residence.

Other articles stolen included a valuable diamond dinner ring, a portable Royal typewriter, table lamp, man's Hamilton watch, table lighter, two ornamental china birds, lady's cloth coat, two alligator hand bags, two lady's sweaters, one pair brown suede oxfords, one pair moleskin walking shoes.

DUFF CONTINUING HIS CAMPAIGN FOR "IKE"

Portland, Ore., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Senator James H. Duff (R-Pa.) says the Republican party, if it hopes to win the presidential election next year, must put itself "in touch with the thinking of the people instead of cramming down their throats something they don't want."

Duff, continuing his country-wide campaign in favor of General Dwight D. Eisenhower for president, told a Republican audience last night that Eisenhower, "above all other candidates," could best give the nation strong leadership.

Pioneer Automobile Salesman Dies At Sheffield Following a Lengthy Illness

Sheffield, Dec. 10.—Albert Daniel Bramer, 66, Sheffield businessman since 1904, died at 9:40 p. m. Saturday at the Gibson Nursing Home after an illness of three years.

The Rev. Grant L. Mottern of the First Methodist church will conduct services at 2 p. m. Tuesday from the Borden Funeral Home, followed by interment in the Sheffield cemetery.

Mr. Bramer was born August 9, 1885, in Smoland, Sweden, and came to the United States when he was five. His family came to Corry where he attended public schools as well as in Garland and Russell City.

At the age of 16, Mr. Bramer went into business for himself when he purchased the livery stable of Herman Gorton, Russell City. Three years later he came to Sheffield to operate the Lee House livery stable and in 1912 he built the City Garage on Main street with his brother, C. W. Bramer, who bought him out in 1927.

Mr. Bramer was one of the first owners of an automobile in Sheffield. The late Charles R. McNeal and Mr. Bramer went to Pittsburgh in 1911 and drove the Ford home, the only knowledge of driving they had was what the salesman had instructed in one-half hour.

After selling his interest in the City Garage business in 1927, Mr. Bramer went into the garage business for himself in the old tannery building on South Main where he sold Hudsons for several years and then took over the Studebaker agency which he had until this year. In April of this year he sold his garage, the Main Garage, to his brother, C. W. Bramer.

A member of the First Methodist church, he was also a member of the Sheffield Chamber of Commerce. On March 20, 1911, he was married to Kathryn Gorton in Jamestown, N. Y.

Survivors include his wife, Kathryn; two daughters, Mrs. Phyllis Curtin, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Jeanne E. Beach, Warren; three grandchildren; three brothers and a sister, C. W. Bramer, Sheffield; Fred and Erick Bramer, Wales, Minnesota, and Mrs. Josephine Carlson, Warren.

Sam Ross, Oil City, a prominent figure in VFW activities throughout this area, will be guest speaker at the fifth annual anniversary banquet of the Michael and Nicholas Peroski post 8755, Veterans of Foreign Wars, this Tuesday evening in the clubhouse. A baked ham dinner will be catered by Lewis of Warren at 6:30 p. m., followed by the address and movies shown by members of the Oil City post. Reservations for members and their wives are being accepted by the officers of the post.

The meeting of the VFW Auxiliary has been changed from Tuesday evening to 8:30 p. m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. P. Haser. Wednesday's meeting will be in the form of a Christmas party and there will be an exchange of 50-cent gifts.

Mothers of pre-school age children are reminded of the well-baby clinic to be conducted Tuesday morning at 9 a. m. in the Washington grade school. Those desiring transportation should call 3054.

Bad Crossing At Sheffield to Have Flasher Signal

Sheffield, Dec. 10.—Approval of a request for the installation of a flashing caution light at the intersection of Routes 6 and 666 near the Pennsylvania railroad crossing and Mindy's Service station was approved by the state highway department, according to an announcement made at Monday night's meeting of the Sheffield township supervisors.

Request for the light originally was made by the Chamber of Commerce through the board of supervisors. Specifications and plans have been received from the highway department and arrangements for installation are expected to be completed within the next two weeks.

The light will flash a yellow caution signal on sides facing Route 6, and a red stop signal will flash facing Route 666.

Only routine business was met by all three supervisors present with board president, Carl J. Anderson, presiding at his final session, ending a six-year term.

The supervisors will conduct their reorganization meeting on Monday, January 7, at which time Otto Mayer, who was elected to a supervisorship last month, will be initiated to the board. Election of a presiding officer and appointment of a secretary also will be on the agenda at the January meeting.

A Christmas home decorating contest for Sheffielders was announced this week by the Chamber of Commerce. Prizes of $15, $10 and $5 will be awarded the first three-place winners.

Decorations will be judged beginning at 8 p. m. Sunday evening, December 23. Names of judges to be invited here from Warren will be announced later.

As in past years, decorations may consist of lawn displays, lighting of evergreens and trees in the yard or decoration of the house. Displays erected by business firms and retail stores are not eligible.

RUSSELL

The third and final meeting of parents will be held at the Russell school January 7, at 8:00 p. m. and it is hoped by the Cub Pack committee that all parents will attend in order that their sons may become charter members of the Pack.

The Lander Unit of the Upper Allegheny Young Farmers' Association met at the home of Harry Bergstrom with a good attendance and two guests, Walter Pierson of Lottsville and Perry Wilcox of Sugar Grove. Allan Lindell, Harry Bergstrom and Edward Wilcox were appointed a committee to contact local township organizations and individuals for suggestions on naming township roads.

These will be submitted to the township supervisors who have indicated they are in favor of erecting signs on the township roads.

WARREN HOSPITALITY SCORES AGAIN

Just a few encounters with visiting hunters during the past week would serve to convince the writer that Warren county is rather a fine place in which to live.

At the end of the first day of buck season, a hunter from Austintown, a small town located in Ohio's southern Ashtabula county, returned to a Pennsylvania avenue restaurant where he had eaten early morning breakfast, and halfheartedly asked if the staff had, by any possible chance, found a wallet. They had, and it was returned to him containing $515 in cash!

Two cars containing hunters from New Alexandria, near Greensburg, parked for the day on a by-path between Corydon and Kinzua. Just before five o'clock, while preparing to return to Warren for the night, one car became stuck in the mud and so did the other while trying to extricate the first. A passerby stopped his car, asked if he could be of service, and upon ascertaining the condition of things said, "Just wait, I'll be back." Back he came, almost an hour later, driving a farm tractor with the aid of two oil lanterns, and pulled the cars out. "Nope," he said, "there's no charge. I don't want a red penny, but has any of you guys got a cough drop?"

Descriptions of farm house hospitality always are interesting, and there are many. The consensus of opinion seems to be that no one has been "gypped" in any of the many transient dealings which are sure to characterize hunting season. In one instance, three hunters felt they were not being charged enough at a farm house, insisted upon paying more! Another hunter said he was hailed down in the street by an attendant from a Times Square gasoline station and advised that he had driven off the day before and left his change from a five dollar bill. In one farm house, the motherly cook heard a hunter mention buckwheat cakes and sausage. She had the combination next morning, and the fact that she has been consistent about it each morning since has in no way detracted from the pleasure of the visit. "Especially with maple syrup thrown in," said a junior member of the party. It was in this house that creamed chicken and biscuits made their appearance after Mom learned her guests hadn't had any in some time.

First-hand information has come from several hunters about the fine treatment received from Warren hotel clerks. With all rooms taken, the clerks often spent considerable time on the 'phone, trying to find satisfactory accommodations rather than have the hunters move on to some other town. Good civic spirit, boys!

Praise for all Warren restaurants has been forthcoming from all hunters without solicitation. "You get enough to eat and you're not overcharged for it," said one. And they say, too, that the waiters and waitresses "don't act like they're out after tips, either."

Several visiting hunters actually took time off from the sport this week to attend Warren service club meetings in order that their attendance record might be kept intact.

Courtesies extended by members of the Warren Borough police department have been mentioned in several instances. The Pennsylvania State Police have come in for their share of praise, and the splendid attitude of the latter has been somewhat of a revelation to visitors from other states. The hunters have said that they do not see how the game protectors turn up the way they do, but always courteous, always efficient, always helpful!

All in all, the hunting season seems to be a success. It's a big boost to Warren county, not only from an economic standpoint, but it's mighty reassuring to have the visitors pleased, satisfied, and to have them come again.

Which is what we hope they will do, in season for sport, out of season for rest and recreation in Pennsylvania's natural playground.

When it becomes known that Warren county is blanketed by another light fall of snow, a new army of hunters will very probably invade the section starting late tonight and tomorrow. With four days of buck season and two days of antlerless season yet to be enjoyed, the visitors may be expected at any time.

Some folks have so much work on their minds they can't keep their minds on their work.

Here And There

Here's another interesting letter from our old friend and subscriber, W. W. Walker, 3302 Wayne street, Toledo, O., containing much that should interest readers who remember the days of the Iron and Oil Baseball League, Hans Wagner, Claude Ritchey, and horse-drawn "taxicabs".

Bill—Since reading the demise of Claude Ritchey and his start in the old Iron and Oil League of the middle '90's at Warren in your "Here and There" column, perhaps the editor of that same column would be interested in some incidents that he overlooked, or the "Mirror" did not carry, and I as a lad of ten years remember. Ritchey I do not recall so much as I do the Wagners, McKeever and Legree, the last two attending St. Joseph's church, where I was an altar boy and they, along with the most of the other players stayed at Moran's European Hotel where the writer and his brother, the late Guy J. Walker, of Oil City, could be found at meal time, sort of two juvenile star boarders of the two Wagners. Al was then, as I recall, considered the better of the two players, due to his better hitting, up until his unfortunate accident while en route to Titusville on the old D. A. V. & P. for a game. Details of the accident are a bit hazy, but I do recall that he fell on or against a picket fence, one of the pickets piercing his right arm at the pit, and I do not recall him ever playing for Warren after the accident, but he was in the lineup at Funksutawney later.

Some of the doings at the ball park, out near Glade, were novel to say the least. For instance, when a Warren player hit for a homer or extra bases, some of the more affluent spectators in the stands threw silver dollars at the player. This is "Gospel" because I as one of the lesser affluent retrieved one of those aforesaid dollars, but could not locate the owner.

Another circumstance brought to mind is the fact that the sporting element attending those games always sat down front and to the right where the Warren bench was, and I do mean "bench" and the names of some of the dollar throwers were Eugene Mitchell, Mike Gleason, Col. Fred Windsor, Mr. Edwards, Mr. Moran and others whose names are lost to memory.

Warren also had a player who got on base through walks, more times than any player I ever heard of since, but in a pinch he always struck out. I wonder if any of the oldsters recall his name? He stayed at the Exchange Hotel at the time. In those days there was a glue factory southeast of the ball park, and on days when the wind was right, the stench was terrific. Who remembers?

And I might add that the fence around the park had a number of dug-under entrances that received quite a play and there must be a number of old-timers who can verify this, especially the one up near the road at the northeast corner. C. U. Later, Bill, I hope.

—Wally.

This 'n That: Dr. Thomas E. Colley, Erie, formerly of Warren, was re-elected president of the Greater Cribbs Methodist Home board at the annual organization meeting held last week, with Dr. Albert Marriott, Meadville, vice president, Rev. Clarence Baldwin, Warren, secretary, and David Dunlop, Conneautville, treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rapp, Dartmouth street, failed to secure a deer while hunting in the Stanton Hill area Friday, but Mrs. Rapp came home with a specimen of wild life that indicated that spring may be just around the corner; it was a small grass snake, about eight or ten inches long, and Mrs. Rapp says that it was as lively as any reptile she ever watched when she first discovered it. A number of Warren "grunt and groan" fans are planning to be at the ringside at Celoron Skateland this evening when Wee Willie Davis tangles with Johnny Bahrend in the main event on a program that will also feature Kenny Ackles and Len Hughes in the semi-final. Carl Frisk, fancy ice skater extraordinary and bowler of no mean average, formerly of this city, but more recently of Warren, Ohio, was mingling with Elk club friends over the weekend. Congratulations to our two managers of Warner Bros. theatres in Warren, George Sarvis, Library, and Eddie Knupp, Columbia, both of whom finished "in the money" in the recent "Showmanship" campaign conducted in Warner theatres across the nation. Part of the large billboard in Third avenue across from the Library theatre has been covered with an attractive poster of The Nativity by the Andrews Poster Co., a project that is much appreciated by citizens of the community.

TRUMAN, like everybody else who has had much association with Allen, became very fond of him. The President's door is always open to him.

Thus, if the President gets another four years, Allen's comfortable and influential position in Washington is undisturbed. But what if the President does not run?

That leaves the most likely Democratic candidate as Chief Justice Vinson. And it just so happens that Vinson is probably even a closer personal friend of Allen's than Truman. They are poker-playing cronies.

Should General Eisenhower be nominated by the Republicans and then win, George Allen would remain just as welcome a visitor to the White House as he is right now. When the General was called to Washington recently by the President, the only purely social event was an evening with Allen.

The way Allen has become associated with important people is amazing. Milton Eisenhower, the General's brother became a good friend of Allen's back in 1932 when Milton was working for the Department of Agriculture.

Through Milton, Allen had heard of brother Dwight. But he didn't get to know him well until later in the early stages of the war when Allen was in London on a special mission for President Roosevelt.

Allen writes: "The fact was that I had met Eisenhower, if at all, only in the most casual way, although Mrs. Eisenhower and Mr. Allen were friends. But I breathed easier when I got a message from home telling me that my old friend Harry Butcher had been appointed Eisenhower's aide."

"So when Eisenhower and Butcher arrived, I stated my problem. I told the General he and I were supposed to be old friends. He seemed amused by my plight and said he'd gladly take me off the hook."

That leaves only the possibility of Sen. Taft's election for Allen to worry about as far as a continuing White House welcome is concerned. Allen is a member of the board of directors of the public relations and advertising firm of Hill and Knowlton which has a connection with Taft's campaign and is supplying Taft a public relations expert who is on Taft's payroll.

In addition, Taft has a secret fondness for Allen. When Taft tried to block Allen's appointment to the RFC, Allen ended up putting Taft

Boro Police Arrest Two More Motorists For Topsy Driving

Two more drunken drivers were added to the list of arrests on that charge when city police picked up Joseph D. Dolansky, of Glassmere, Pa., early Saturday morning, and Eric Peterson, of Jamestown, N. Y., Saturday night. The bag for 1951 now totals 35.

Dolansky, when arraigned before Police Justice Tracy M. Greenlund, entered a plea of innocent and vended a hearing for court. He furnished $500 cash bail for his appearance there.

Peterson entered a plea of innocent and demanded a hearing before Justice Greenlund, furnishing property bail in the amount of $1,000 for his appearance. Time for his hearing has not yet been set, Justice Greenlund said this morning.

Police recorded two motor vehicle accidents over the weekend in neither of which there were any injuries. One was a minor collision at Market and Second Saturday afternoon, a small damage which parties involved settled. No report was filed.

The second occurred last evening.

at 11:15 o'clock when cars operated by Almond Kiser, 111 Park street, and Sam Zaffino S. Rocco, 1018 West Fifth avenue collided. According to the report, Kiser was driving south on Hickory and Rocco north on the same street. At the intersection, Rocco attempted a left turn into third and struck the left front fender of the Kiser automobile. Damage was listed at $50 Kiser and $100 to Rocco.

Other police news is of a routine nature with the usual quota of family battles in which police referred participants to legal counsel after restoring peace. One drunk, a transient, was picked off the sidewalk on Second avenue at 3:15 a. m. Sunday, and taken to police headquarters. He was escorted from the village as soon as it was light enough to see Sunday morning.

Military Rites for Soldier Killed in Korea

SALUTE TO THE DEAD is given by Sgt. Emil Rass, USA, as he faces the casket of Pfc. Marshall G. Fellows, USA, at committal services, Saturday afternoon, in Pine Grove Cemetery, Russell. At the head of the grave is Commander Louis Vizza of Chief Complanter Post 135, American Legion, who read the Legion ritual. At right is Major Charles Schaffer, commanding officer of the Salvation Army, who officiated at the funeral service. At left are sorrowing relatives and in the background are Legionnaires who served as pall bearers, with Chaplain Floyd Ahlquist at extreme right.

Largely attended funeral services were held, Saturday afternoon, in memory of Pfc. Marshall G. Fellows, USA, killed in action in Korea last August 27. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Felro, 323 East Fifth avenue.

Major Charles Schaffer, commanding officer of the Salvation Army, officiated at the services held in the citadel, where the body reposed in state from shortly after its arrival in Warren early Friday until the funeral hour.

The citadel was filled to overflowing as the services opened with a hymn, "Shall We Gather at the River?" with Mrs. Iva Matha at the piano. Mrs. Schaffer offered prayer and Major Schaffer read the Scripture. There was a duet, "In the Garden," by Donna and Shirley Osborne, with Mrs. Schaffer at the piano.

Messages of condolence were read from the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Pennsylvania, General Matthew Ridgway, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Lt. Col. Ralph T. Miller, divisional commander of the Salvation Army, Cadet Robert Marshall of the Salvation Army Training College.

The sermon was delivered by Major Schaffer, who also offered prayer following the closing hymn, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

Bearers from the American Legion Post were Commander Louis Vizza, Floyd Ahlquist, Kenneth Whalen, Charles Blackman, Tom Conway and Lyle Christie.

At the graveside in Pine Grove cemetery, Russell, the services were conducted by Major Schaffer and by the Legion, with prayer offered by Chaplain Floyd Ahlquist and the ritual read by Commander Louis Vizza. The firing squad was composed of the following Legionnaires in rendering the salute to the dead: James Senger, who was in charge, Clarence Bowers, Robert Schatzle, James Torrance, Eugene Pring, Robert Lundberg and John Haggerty. Taps were sounded by James Casse.

The flag which covered the bronze casket was folded by Commander Vizza and Sgt. Emil Rass, USA, who acted as honor guard for Pfc. Fellows' body on the journey to Warren. It was presented, "with the gratitude of the United States of America," to the dead soldier's mother by Sgt. Rass. Standing with the other bereaved relatives was Sgt. Virgil Fellows, USA, of Camp Atterbury, Ind., a brother of Pfc. Fellows.

In the Salvation Army citadel, the casket of the young man who had been an ardent Salvation Army worker, was surrounded by a beautiful and profuse array of floral tributes.

Fellows, Camp Atterbury, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fish, Waterford; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schuyler, Jamestown; Mrs. Russell Fellows, Fentonville; Mrs. Pearl Fellows, Akeley; Mrs. Willard Fellows, Ohio; Henry Millard, Falconer; Mrs. Henry Fish, Sinclairville; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Maltraw, Erie.

MEN ARE SO HELPLESS

BUY HER CHRISTMAS PRESENT AT BETTY LEE... WEDNESDAY NIGHT. NO WOMEN ALLOWED. We've heard of men who love to Christmas shop? They love to give up their lunch hours—dash from store to store after a hard day's work. Boldly they attack the undies counter. Shrewdly they banter gauges and deniers and lengths and shades at the nylon counter. We've heard of men who love to Christmas shop—but we've never met one. The men we know put Christmas shopping somewhere between going to a concert and filing the income tax. Come December, they go glassy-eyed and amnesic. Does the wife have hazel or magenta eyes? Is she 5' 7" or 7' 5"? Was it a French bag or an English setter he gave her last year? We call it shop-fright. And we say it should be avoided at all costs. We say MEN SHOULD BE PROTECTED, CODDLED AND PAMPERED at this trying time. This Wednesday night at Betty Lee is Men's Night... No women allowed... (Our sweet, helpful hostesses don't count, of course). We're brim full of beautiful presents for women... Just come in and our very pretty clerks will solve all your problems... Sip on something un-laxing... Before you know it, your Christmas shopping is over, done, finished 'til next year. Remember this WEDNESDAY AT BETTY LEE IS MEN'S NIGHT... NO WOMEN ALLOWED.

CHRISTMAS EVE ON SIX MILE RUN

(By Arthur Burd McCormick)

roduction: After General Wayne defeated the Indians in the Battle of Faling Tinn 1795 a Treaty was signed opening Northwestern Pennsylvania for settlement. Among the first to pour into the rich region was one named Alexander. He staked out a claim on upper reaches of Six Mile Run, and off a field or two, planted crops, built a log cabin and brought his family to the new settlement—Margaret, his wife, and children, Jamie and Jessie. The story is Christmas in the father had taken a load of wild honey to Pittsburg with which to buy food and for his little family. He had gone longer than was expected.

Our father has been gone a time," remarked Margaret to her son Jamie on the morning of the day before Christmas. "He should have been home ago. There is nothing in the house except a little meal, just enough to last us a day. Tomorrow is Christmas with no dinner in sight, and we will be so disappointed to go to an empty stocking. I don't know what to do."

Other, why couldn't I go to the hills to Warren to get food and a trinket or two for the children? It is only six or seven miles away. I might meet a man on the trail, and if I do not surely get to town and back by night."

But you are such a little fellow, you are only twelve. I hate to see you go. I would give every minute until you are safe home."

But I wouldn't need to worry about me. Mother, I'm strong and brave. Besides, it is our only chance. We must have something to eat. Won't you trust me, Mother, I'll do that. So I'll be getting on, for it is late."

The two miles to the mouth of Six Mile Run were the easiest of the day for the lad got a lift on a sled drawn by oxen, so he was refreshed and rested for the four mile trail up along the brook.

The sun was near the setting and the valley looked gloomy and forbidding. It was a fearsome jaunt for a little fellow. The courage he had felt in the morning oozed away as he pushed along up the faint trail. To be alone in the dark forest at such an hour brings panic even to stout hearts.

Doggishly Jamie gritted his teeth and made what haste he could, burdened as he was. He wished he did not have the rifle—at least for a time he wished it. Suddenly there rang out the most blood-curdling wail he had ever heard.

It came from across the stream and seemed to freeze the very marrow of his bones. It echoed from side to side—and died away into silence. And then again it came, rising to a crescendo, and this time it seemed to be nearer than before.

With a half-sob, Jamie hastened along the trail, stumbling over stones, tripped at times by roots, falling, but getting up again and plunging on in the hope that he might escape. When he had covered another mile he thought he was safe. But, again came the cry.

The animal was keeping abreast of him, screened by the bushes on the other side of the Run.

By this time he had come to the narrows, where the trail follows a ledge of rock under a beesting cliff. There Jamie remembered something that brought him a moment of hope.

There was a cave in the side of the cliff. He had found it one day during the summer when he was fishing. The brook makes a wide curve, and, happening to lift up his eyes from the pool he was fishing he saw the dark mouth of a cave about 20 feet above the water. He had climbed up to it and found it to be only a few yards in depth and not high enough to allow one to stand.

The thought came then that it would be fun to pass a night there sometime and he spent an hour or so carrying up wood for a fire and leaves for a bed, intending to get permission to camp out the next time he came fishing. But there was so much for a boy to do about the farm that the time never came and he had forgotten all about it.

In a flash it came to him that if he could get up to the cave he would be safe from attack. Slinging the gun over his shoulder he began the climb, frantic in his haste, for he seemed to feel that the strange animal was close behind him. The rocks were icy, affording little hold for hands and feet. Once he slid back a couple of yards. Then came the cry of the pursuing beast and with one last tremendous effort he pulled himself up to the shelf of the cave and was safe for the moment.

Night was now coming down over the forest and it was difficult to see anything, but as he strained his eyes he became aware that a large cat-like animal was crossing the ice of the stream. He knew it for a panther and feared it tremendously. The animal stood below him lashing its tail back and forth and flexing its muscles for a spring.

Suddenly it launched itself with a mighty effort and came within a few feet of reaching the shelf. The boy was paralyzed with cold fear and sobbed aloud in an agony of dread.

The panther tumbled back, snarling with rage, and then came again to the attack, this time clawing his way up the rocks foot by foot. Jamie remembered his rifle. Unslung it, he knelt down and aimed right between the terrible eyes, now within a yard of the muzzle of the gun. He pulled the trigger and the bullet crashed into the creature's brain and sent him tumbling to the foot of the cliff, where he lay very still.

Jamie was shaking as with palsy and for a time could not move from his position. Every nerve stretched taut, but at last he heaved a great sigh, sat down and wept for a time in sheer relief. Then he faced his problem.

Should he go on? Or should he stay where he was? What if the panther had a mate? What if he lost the trail in the darkness? Sensibly he decided to remain in the cave.

He built a little fire—it had to be a little fire, else the wood might not last the night out. Then he made himself a bed of leaves, close to the flames and with the wall behind him reflecting the heat he was comfortable and almost content.

As he lay there, making a supper of some parched corn he had in his pocket, looking up into the stars shining clear in the frosty sky, he saw one star brighter than the rest and remembered it was Christmas Eve.

The wondrous story came back to him of the Child in the manger, the Shepherds watching their flocks by night, angels singing in the blue, and wise men following from afar the light of the Christmas Star.

Somewhat or other Jamie began to feel that he was not alone, that there was a Shepherd looking after small boys, that God's angels guarded His children, and the stars themselves seemed close and friendly. All alone in the great forest—and yet—not alone! He was surrounded by the Hosts of Heaven. It was Christmas Eve on Six Mile and a lad was watching and dreaming beside a fire. We dare say that there were no angels watching over him? "It is not the will of your Father in Heaven that one of these little ones should perish." The Child of Bethlehem said that when He was the Man of Galilee.

Meanwhile things were happening at the cabin. Mother Margaret busied herself all day, trying to help the slow hours to move faster by being occupied with many things. Ever and anon she went to the door to look and listen for any sign of the return of her loved ones. Evening came and Jessie began to clamor for her supper.

"Can you not wait, child, until Jamie gets home?"

"I'm hungry, mother, let us eat our share and save a portion for brother?"

"We may as well," said Margaret. "We have nothing but a little meal—enough for some griddle cakes. We'll save a couple for Jamie."

Just as they were about to sit down at the table the door latch rattled and they turned to give Jamie a royal welcome. But no Jamie appeared. Instead, an evil-looking, ragged Indian came in, seemingly half-frozen and half-starved. He demanded food, and the terrified woman dared not refuse. The savage wolfed down their entire supper—the last scrap of food in the house—while they hungrily had to watch it disappear.

The Indian never said a word, hardly noting their presence in the cabin. Having eaten he stretched himself out beside the fire and seemed to fall asleep at once, though every minute Margaret moved there was a flicker of eye-lids and she knew he was watching her through narrow slits.

Bedtime came for little girls, and it was Christmas Eve. Margaret decided to act according to her custom, as if no hostile stranger were present. Sitting down before the blazing logs in the fireplace, with Jessie upon her knees, she told the story of the Birth of the Christ Child and the little girl's eyes grew wide with wonder, and she forgot her hunger. And then they sang together the Christmas carol of Martin Luther's children.

"Away in a manger
No crib for His bed
The Little Lord Jesus
Lay down His wee head."

Trustingly Jessie knelt at her mother's knee to say her evening prayer and went to bed certain in the knowledge that the Christmas Child would watch by her cradle till morning was nigh.

While the child slept the mother kept her lonely vigil of anxious fears. Where was her little boy? Lost in the forest? Slain by wolves? Stolen by the Indians?

She thought of that Mother 1800 years ago whose heart was pierced with anguish for her Son and so thinking she felt the less forlorn. The magic of Christmas Eve cast its spell across her heart and sometime after midnight her utter weariness resulted in a deep sleep, as she sat in her chair in the faint light of the dying fire.

When Margaret finally awoke it was day—and she was alone, save for the child still slumbering in her crib. The Indian was gone. But he had brought in an armful of wood and replenished the fire which was blazing brightly on the hearth and filling the cabin with warmth. It was Christmas Day in the morning—a Christmas without presents—without food, though not without love, and faith and hope. Somehow or other there was peace in her heart.

As suddenly as the night before, the door opened and the Indian stood on the threshold carrying a deer on his shoulders. He threw it on the floor, said, "White Squaw much good!" Then turned and went away, never looking back. Her first Christmas present! And most welcome—for it meant food for many a day. She remembered that in her Bible it is written: "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares."

As she stood in thankful meditation thinking that even in darkened savage hearts there yet were gleams of tenderness, she heard a shout from the forest. It was Jamie! In a moment he came out into the open, looking a bit haggard, but evidently safe and sound, whole of body and limb. With a cry of immense relief she ran and gathered him in her arms.

"My poor boy, what kept you out in the woods all night? How did you escape freezing to death? What happened?"

Jamie laughed. "Mother, you are excited. I'll tell you all later; but first, is Jessie awake?"

"She is still asleep."

"Let us hurry then and fill her stockings. I have an apple, some winter-green berries I gathered and this little doll."

They slipped into the cabin, filled the stockings, then called a soft, "Merry Christmas, Jessie."

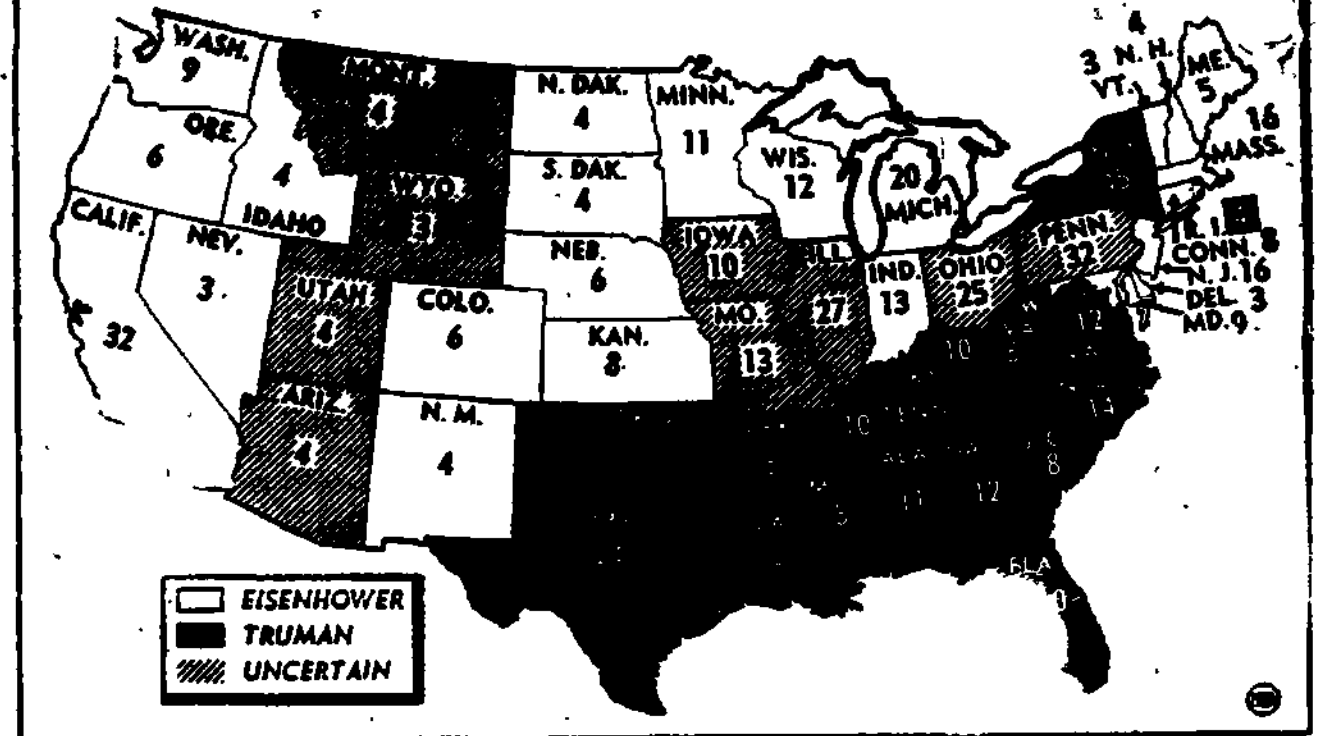

Whereupon the child opened her eyes, caught sight of her stockings hanging on the mantle, with the rag doll sticking out of the top. Her cry of delight was as an echo of glad cries from happy hearts far and near as little children everywhere came anew to Christmas morning.

While the children talked Margaret stirred up batter for pancakes and as they ate Jamie told of his strange adventure with the panther, of his night in the cave and of his relief at being home again.

An unusual sound began to make itself heard above their happy talking, the clanging of a bell where a bell had never before been heard. They rushed to the door to behold a cow being driven down the trail—the bell was on her collar—and behind the cow came father leading a horse with a great load of good things upon his back. Nothing more was needed to make it a perfect Christmas Day. What a time of greeting there was!

They had a wonderful dinner and afterwards sat long before the fire. Father told of his journey to Pittsburgh, of the sights of that growing town, of his successful bargaining and the slow trip home. It was the cow which made him late, but what a boon! Little Jessie could now have all the milk she needed.

Then Jamie must tell of his adventure and he was proud indeed when he felt his father's hand him on his shoulder, as he called upon, "My brave little man!" Silently the father prayed, that Jamie might grow as the boy Jesus grew, "in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

"IKE" IS PEOPLE'S CHOICE, SAY SUPPORTERS, COULD BEAT TRUMAN—As a presidential candidate opposing Mr. Truman, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, according to Gerald Landis, director of the National Eisenhower Headquarters, would carry 23 states for a total of 200 electoral votes and pick up enough of the 122 votes held by nine "uncertain" states to win a majority. Map above, based on Landis' reports from "Electoral, Independent and Democratic observers in every state," gives Truman 16 states and 204 electoral votes, two less than the number claimed for "Ike." That the general is the people's choice was also declared by Sen. James Duff (R., Pa.) at left in picture below, at the opening of the "Youth for Eisenhower" Headquarters in New York. An "overwhelming" majority of voters favor Eisenhower's running for President was the conviction Duff said he brought back from his tour of "about 20 states."

Life on Six Mile was full of hardship, and sometimes, as last eve, of danger, but by and large it was a great school of self reliance. Boys could grow tall among these tall trees. And Jamie was growing up.

Christmas night, as Jamie and Jessie soundly slept, father and mother talked softly in the warm, red light of burning logs. There was thankfulness that all had turned out as it did; there was pride in their two lovely children; there were nostalgic memories of the past, of the loved ones far away in the Coast Lands, but there was no regret for the privations of their present. They were pioneers, living far from men, surrounded by the wilderness, but the spirit of Christmas had found them there as it had found men and women in crowded cities everywhere.

They were laying the foundations of stable society beyond the Alleghenies in the region of "The Beautiful River". Here were to be fruitful fields and orchards, the homes of their children and their children's children. They seemed to see it all in the flickering flames, and as the sparks flew upward their prayers rose to the Father of the children of men. With hand clasping hand they sat in the blissful silence that only the happily wedded know. It was the end of a perfect day, a Christmas Day on Six Mile Run.

How Do Story-Book Hostesses Cope With a Guy Like Pop?

AFTER the guests arrive he is a charming host. But any wife will tell you that a man feels absolutely no responsibility for a party before the guests arrive.

Half an hour before the first guest arrives, you will find the man of the house doing one of the following things:

Taking a quick nap to get in shape for the evening. That means he probably won't be at the door to greet the first guests and that Mama will only make it by the skin of her teeth. That's because, of course, she has to re-make the bed in the room she had foolishly figured was all ready for company.

Racing across town to buy the wine he was reminded only three times to buy on his way home from the office.

Ripping through the bookshelves to find a book he's promised to lend Joe or yanking everything out of his closet to find something he hasn't worn or thought of wearing in a year.

Snatching canapes from the perfectly arranged tray the wife hoped would win oohs and ahs from the feminine guests.

Down at the corner getting the hair-cut he has been needing for a week.

COOPS! THERE GOES THE FURNITURE!

STARTING a rough house game with the kids in the middle of the living room.

Telling the lady of the house he needs a business letter that is probably put away with all the other things quickly shoved into drawers to make the house look spic and span. None of the advice to would-be serene hostesses ever tells a woman how to maintain her calm and poise through this kind of last minute, frantic search.

That's about as much help as any wife gets from even the most charming and affable of hosts. A woman will work two days to get ready to be a hostess. A man assumes the role at the split second when the first guests ring the door bell.

Centerville Couple To Have Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Putnam, who live in Centerville, about two miles north of Titusville in Crawford county, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary next Sunday, December 16, their children holding open house for friends and relatives from two until five o'clock.

Mr. Putnam built there an independent telephone company to serve the surrounding territory and, in 1910, bought his present home in Centerville and moved to that place. In 1921, he sold the company to the local corporation and since that time has been engaged in the feed and coal business.

Interesting Talk On St. Barnabas Heard at Trinity

Brother H. Willard Gilpin, of St. Barnabas Brotherhood, North East, gave an interesting address at the morning service at Trinity Memorial Episcopal church Sunday, during which he related many interesting experiences during a tour abroad last summer when he visited seven European countries, and also discussed at considerable length some of the work and activities at St. Barnabas House by the lake.

Comparing the program at St. Barnabas with relief work in some of the European countries, he said that he visited some hospitals abroad where persons without funds are not admitted, let alone receive treatment. At St. Barnabas, he said a man or boy to be received as a patient must be destitute and have an incurable disease. He described it as "A Christian home for all in need, regardless of creed, color, or religion."

He said the home is a member of the American Hospital Association. Brother Willard declared that the capacity of St. Barnabas is 42, and at present it is 17 over capacity with a waiting list of 109.

The speaker described some of the unusual requests that are received at the Home, from charitable groups, public officials, and individuals such as young married couples, teen-age children and families in destitute circumstances.

Teletypewriter Wire Service Inaugurated by AP

press, Indiana Gazette, Butler Eagle, Lancaster New Era, Chambersburg Public Opinion, Waynesboro Record-Herald, Pottsville Republican, Johnstown Tribune, Trenton Times and Vineland Times-Journal. Other AP member newspapers will join the circuit at a later date.

Editors sending the news on a teletypewriter circuit prepare the copy in exactly the manner it will appear in type. Teletypewriter operators then perforate an oil paper tape with a code which will activate the various operations of a linecasting machine.

This tape is run through an automatic transmitter which changes the code into a series of electrical impulses. Perforators receive these impulses in the various newspaper offices, reproducing the tape in the same form as it originally was punched in the central office. The new tape then is run through the linecasting machines to produce news stories in type.

THE SONGS OF CHRISTMAS

Lewis H. Radner was organist and Sunday school superintendent of the Church of the Holy Trinity in Philadelphia in 1885 when its rector, Phillips Brooks, wrote the words to "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Brooks asked Radner to set them to music.

Radner had little time to consider the hymn. Christmas was but a few days off. On the Saturday night before the song was to be sung for the first time he sat down with no music written.

"I was aroused from sleep," he reported later, "hearing an angel strain whispering in my ear."

Seizing a piece of music paper, Lewis Radner jotted down the treble notes of the melody that was ringing in his head and which had awakened him from sleep.

The next morning, Sunday, he filled in the harmony. The Sunday school children sang the carol that morning, but it was almost 20 years before "O Little Town of Bethlehem" found its way into a hymnal.

Phillips Brooks, who wrote the words, was an outstanding clergyman, famed as an orator and author, but none of his speeches, sermons or writings is as well remembered as his Christmas carol. "A song," wrote Henry Giles, "all outlive all sermons in the memory."

Organized Guard Remains in State Adjutant Reminds

Harrisburg — Pennsylvanians have been reminded that the departure of the 28th Division for Europe does not mean the end of the Pennsylvania National Guard for the "duration."

Maj. Gen. Frank A. Weber, the Adjutant General of Pennsylvania, pointed out in an appeal for continued public support of the Guard that over 8000 Air and non-divisional Army National Guardsmen remain on state service.

Major units represented in the total are the 104th Armored Cavalry Regiment, with headquarters in Harrisburg; the 111th Regimental Combat Team, stationed in Philadelphia, and the 112th Fighter Wing located at Harrisburg, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Units of battalion and Anti-Aircraft Artillery group level also remain on state service. They carry out duties as an internal security force and as an "M" day force prepared for induction into Federal service whenever the call comes.

"Every one of these units," General Weber said, "need public support for the successful accomplishment of its mission. We are faced with a big recruiting problem. If public interest in the Pennsylvania National Guard lags now just because the largest and most publicized unit is in Federal overseas service our effectiveness may well be crippled."

"In the event of a serious storm, such as hit Pittsburgh just a year ago," the adjutant general continued, "the remaining Guard units will be called upon for disaster and relief service. In the event of a wide-spread civil disturbance the Guard would be expected to furnish the manpower and equipment to cope with it."

Hal Boyle's Comment

By SAUL PEIT (For Hal Boyle)

New York—(P)—For more than 100 years, the family of August Wooster has pursued the same craft without rebellion in the ranks—until now.

Since 1842, the Woosters of Holland and New York have devoted all their talents to making tiny, highly detailed figurines of soldiers and historic personalities.

It was an art perfected not only by the men of the house, wives and children pitched in, too.

That's the way it went for four generations, but the fifth generation is kicking up a fuss.

The Woosters work in a small eastside shop, where they have more than 1,000,000 miniatures, no more than three inches high, made of white metal or carved out of wood. There on the shelves are fighting men from the legions of Alexander the great to Napoleon's fusiliers to Grant's blues. Also, in realistic detail, there are miniature likenesses of the great names of history—from David to Dwight Eisenhower.

Wooster and his older son, Earl, who is 20, make the molds. Mrs. Wooster, a sculptor, makes the master figure. A second son, Clive, who is 17, is the painter. He colors the tiny statues with a brush thin enough to thread a needle.

The Woosters make and sell some cheaply priced toy soldiers for children. But their art and reputation lie in making Hand-wrought figures on order for adult collectors. Right now they're working on one of Richard III in his death scene, falling to earth with a battle axe in his head. It will cost the Hollywood screen writer who ordered it $300. The face of the tiny figure is only two millimeters from forehead to chin.

Wooster said the biggest collector he knows of is Doug Fairbanks who, he estimates, has more than 15,000 figures worth "many" thousands of dollars. The Fairbanks collection includes examples of every regiment of the British, Indian and American armies.

Wooster also has carved $2500 chess sets of ivory. "Most of them," he said, "were bought by oil people from Texas or Oklahoma. From the way they talk about it, I don't think they know anything about chess."

Wooster has had some odd orders. The state department recently ordered some pike-helmeted German soldiers of the first World War. Wooster has no idea why.

Warren's Second Period Spurt Defeats Sheffield

16-PT. LEAD AMASSED IN ONE QUARTER NETS 51-35 VICTORY; AT JAMESTOWN TUES. NIGHT

A fast Warren High Dragon quintet pounded out a 51-35 victory over the Sheffield High Wolverines at Beaty gym. Friday night, for its initial cage victory of the season in two tries. It was the second defeat for Coach Ralph Santo and his team in four starts.

Bob Harrington, junior guard, who literally burned up the court with his fast breaks, paced Coach Joe Massa's squad with five field goals and swished two out of four tries from the foul line. Starting center Bernie Gray ran a close second with 11 points, while guards Jon Pearson and Ricky Sealise tied with eight. Junior forward Ron Isackson was next with seven.

For the Wolverines, Jim Carr took scoring honors with nine points and was followed close behind by Dick Wenker with eight. Wenker, who stretches six-foot-three and one-half, has been putting in some fine performances for Sheffield, was hindered in Friday's contest by a bad ankle.

Although the Orange and Black field a slight edge over the Dragons at the end of the first period, the Blue and White cagers proved too powerful in the second stanza by racking up 20 points to the Wolverines' four.

Scoring started when Wenker put for a two-pointer after the tip-off, but neither team could do much damage as was indicated when time ran out with the Santonen holding a slim, 9-7 lead.

The Dragons built up their decisive margin in the second period, turning in a hot 20 points to take hold of a 27-13 margin at intermission. In the closing half both teams held their own quite well to far as the scoreboard goes, with 10-9 and 14-13 scoring favoring the locals.

Pearson was injured in the final period and was replaced by Jerry Gordon. Gordon, a sophomore, made up the 13th man on Massa's squad but didn't bring the Dragons any bad luck as superstitious persons might think. The young soph, who saw earlier action in the game, has been playing with the jayvees and may earn a permanent berth on the varsity.

The Massamen easily penetrated the Orange and Black defense and showed considerable improvement over their own zone since last Tuesday's game against Tidioute. Sheffield also used the zone defense, but with not too much effectiveness as the 51-35 verdict showed.

Today, the Warren coach is prepping his boys for the journey to Jamestown tomorrow night for a contest with the Red Raiders. So far, Coach Rolland Taft's Jintowners have lost two in a row, first to Erie Tech, 58-36, and Friday night to Fredonia, 46-30.

Legislative Action But No Trades Is Result of Meeting

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Dec. 10.—(P)—The windup of the week-long minor and major league baseball conventions today produced nothing but a lot of legislative action which was greeted by yawns from the man in the street.

"What happened to all those dynamite deals cooked up last week in Columbus?" they asked.

The plain truth is they turned out to be a lot of duds. An innocent bystander would have wondered a week's salary that at least one trade would be pulled off by the way the club officials, especially Buzzy Bavasi of Brooklyn and Gabe Paul of Cincinnati, hustled around talking shop with anyone who was willing to listen.

But now it's all over. No big league trades. No sales. No purchases. No nothing.

Nearly all the club owners and managers have left or are en route home and Ted Williams is still with the Boston Red Sox. Eddie Stanky is still the property of the New York Giants. Fred Saigh still is seeking a manager for his St. Louis Cardinals and the Dodgers and Reds are no nearer to a deal than they ever have been.

Each league had an excuse for not completing a transaction. American League men blamed it on the veil of secrecy that shrouds the status of Joe DiMaggio.

Through The Wind Tunnel

Every few days the post brings a letter which helps to piece together the pattern of the past, just like a crossword picture, and gradually the pieces fall into place, and the present day is brought up to date for the writer, absent from Warren: Lo, these 23 long years! Today's mail was no exception, including a fine epistle from Stanley Gordon Stroup, now a practicing attorney in Bedford and Harrisburg, and many years ago the buddy and YM roomie of your scribe, and assistant to Coach J. B. Leidig. How well do we remember that early morn, just after sun-up, when we stood by his side in First Lutheran church and he took unto himself a beautiful bride, the then LaRue Robinson. Stan advises that LaRue and he reside in Bedford; have two children, Gordon, 21, a junior in Penn. State, and Kathleen, 17, a junior in high school. They expect to be in Warren "and talk over old times before too long." LaRue is the daughter of Mrs. George Robinson and a sister of Mrs. Ed Rasmussen. Stan's many friends will be interested indeed to know where he is and what he is doing.

Abie Juliano's plans in regard to the Marine Corps League dance, Christmas night, are exciting a great deal of interest.

Abigail is having deep freeze trouble. All of her hunter boards, including the one who became ill from squash sandwiches, have killed a buck. And now that the bushel of squash has been used up, they have decided Abigail is a good cook for all, and are staying over after doe season. The big one in the east bed room was first to arrive home with a deer, and Abigail had room for the meat in her deep freeze which she bought third-handed from the Grange hall when the Grangers decided not to sell ice cream any more. Then when the medium size hunter in the west bedroom came home with his, she prevailed upon Great-grandma Billings to store the meat at her house, and now she's not on speaking terms with Gramma because the old lady got out a bottle of elderberry nectar which she put up the first time Gramma ran for township auditor on the Prohibition ticket, and the absent-minded hunter forgot to leave the deer at Gramma's when he did finally wander home by the wrong road. come to the conclusion that she just didn't take these men in so the entire neighborhood would be entertained. She's got the third deer in the kitchen ice box and down on the board money so's they can all eat it right up, but when Gramma called up and said she was thinking of buying another deep freeze, "just for emergencies," that was the last straw, so Abigail hitched up old Juniperberry III, who hadn't been out of her stall since the boys let her out on Hallow'een, and took the meat to Walker's Creamery for storage, so there! After all the trouble 'bout that squash, and the terrible revelations that came out during club meeting, Abigail can't see why the members of the Busy Doers and Stitchy Fingers club had to go and send her a copy of Helen Rockwell's cook book!

Abigail got right interested in a cute little game the hunters were playing 'round the kitchen table, Saturday night, in which they kept saying "I'll raise ya." They asked her to join in and she couldn't see why they all decided to retire early when she finally had all those little things called chips stacked in front of her. And she still can't understand why they all so solemnly paid her such a lot of extra board money. Hunters is funny things, opines Abigail. She's going to muck them, too, after doe season. And so are we.

Picked up the Patriot newspaper in Harrisburg Saturday and was pleased to see Barb Cochran pictured with a group of 13 State College students that are now doing their student teaching at William Penn. Barb, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cochran, is a senior at Penn State this year and is majoring in physical education.

On the return trip from the capitol city we were fortunate to bump into Tom Juliano in Pittsburgh. Ten to one says we know why he was there and do don't blame him a bit. She is a wonderful little girl.

Junior Varsity Wins Over Sheffield In 66 to 7 Runaway

Warren High Dragonettes again proved themselves worthy by handing the Sheffield JV's a 66-7 lacing in the preliminary game on Beaty court, Friday night.

Sharp ball handling and accurate shooting quickly subdued the Baby Wolverines. From the starting tipoff to the final whistle the Warren Junior Varsity continued to pile up the score. Only in the second stanza did they let up when they scored eight points to Sheffield's two.

In the first quarter Bob Wilson, junior forward, racked up 10 of his 15 points. Sophomore Gary Ettinger was next with 10 and Bruce Duell was third with eight. Hedman and Lindblade were high for Sheffield with two marks each.

Players Favor Platoons, Bowls; Matson Would Run in Olympics

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK.—(NEA)—Asked to say a few words at Look's All-America party, Capt. Doc Blanchard looked up and down the two-platoon dais and said:

"I'd like to ask for 22 quick appointments to the Military Academy, and play Navy again next week."

Chatting with the pick of the college football players, you found out two things. With all the criticism of the unit plan and New Year's Day Bowl games, the combatants are in favor of them.

Handsome Frank McPhee, defensive end and the new captain, blocked six punts for Princeton the past campaign.

"The player is more efficient going only the one way," he said.

Hank Lauricella, the great Tennessee tailback, played defensively only in his sophomore year. Dick Kazmaier, who filled the same role for Princeton, completed his entire career without ever having made a tackle, yet both seconded McPhee.

All hands agreed that Bowl junkies were a lot of fun, and the Texas delegation told you that Georgia Tech's Darrell Crawford would have to be as good as his record indicates to match Baylor's Larry Isbell in the Miami Orange Bowl. Guard Ray Beck of the Engineers assured them that Crawford would live up to his billing. This one certainly sticks out as a passing show.

MOST of the boys face the military, including Ollie Matson, San Francisco's six-foot two-and-a-half inch, 203-pound fullback.

Matson has other problems, too. He intended to play professionally, but would first like to compete in the Olympic Games. He has done the 100 in 9.8, the 220 in 21.1 and the 440 in 46.8. Imagine a fellow like that running with a football.

Guard Nick Liotta, who for some strange reason hung himself at Villanova the day he was named to the All-Americans, could have gone right on playing—professionally. Halfback Johnny Karras of Illinois and Kentucky center Doug Mosely will. Al Brosky, the safety man, captains the Illinois next trip.

Liotta had been in the Army with Karras, Mosely and Brosky, you see. As a matter of fact, Liotta and Brosky played against Karras and Mosely in a game in Japan in 1947.

Brosky intercepted 11 passes as a sophomore, 10 as a junior.

"I got my biggest belt out of running them back," he smiled, casting another vote for the platoons.

Kansas City, Dec. 10—(P)—The Big Seven Conference has clamp- ed a series of restrictions on sports in one of the nation's most drastic cutbacks by a major col- lege league.

The post-season ban for the conference's seven schools goes beyond football bowl games. It even affects post-season events sponsored by the National Col- legiate Athletic Association, such as basketball and track. It be- comes effective Sept. 1, 1952.

Other rulings include: Spring practice in both football and basketball cut down. Fall basketball practice curtain- ed and the number of games re- duced.

Conference code on financial aid to athletes amended.

Schools in the big seven are Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Col- orado, Iowa State, Nebraska and Kansas State.

FIRST AID for Everybody

V--Treatment of Burns

(This is another of a series of articles, written especially for Cen- tral Press Association and this newspaper on first aid, a subject gripping the nation in the light of threatened atomic aggression. The articles are based on the American Red Cross First Aid course. First aid principles, applicable to atomic as well as other disasters, are out- lined. The Red Cross offers a 23-hour course free which teaches fully the technique of first aid.)

By Central Press
BURNS AND SCALDS kill more children than any other type of accident and most of the deaths could be prevented. Prevention methods are too numerous to list here, but all have to do with ordinary precautions that should be exercised in and out of the home.

Burns, of course, take on a new implication when you think of war and bombed-out cities but in peace- time most fatalities from burns could have been avoided. They are due largely to careless habits, like smoking in bed or pouring kero- sene into a stove.

The amount of body surface burned, as well as the degree of the burn, plays a part in its sever- ity. The first-degree burn, with the reddened skin, perhaps from the wind or a day at the beach, be- comes a second-degree burn the next day if you find you are blister- ed.

The third-degree burn, the most serious of all, is when the flesh is cooked and charred and the skin destroyed. Shock is usually severe if the burn is at all extensive. Therefore, the first aider's duties are to relieve pain, prevent infec- tion and treat shock.

FOR BURNS of limited extent, apply petrolatum or ointment. Place it over a layer or two of fine mesh gauze and bandage on. If the burn is extensive, keep patient lying down, and avoid exposure or cold. Don't attempt to treat the victim locally on the street or in a public building. Leave clothes on, wrap him in blankets and get transpor- ted to the wounds and apply a tation. If at home, remove cloth- ing except that which may be warms baking soda or Epsom salts solution. Keep the patient covered and warm until the doctor arrives.

First aid procedures for burns suffered in an atomic disaster must fit into later medical care dictated by physicians. All burns, therefore, should be regarded as open wounds with shock and infection as haz- ards. The burn wound needs pro- tection with the cleanest dressing available.

Application of dry dressings must be done in many cases by first aiders if a bomb catastrophe strikes. It is unrealistic to expect first aiders to apply ointment when there are many casualties—there- fore, the dry dressing.

But the first aider must decide whether to apply a dressing before the victim can be transported. Even the severely burned can be transported a short distance with- out a dressing. If the victim must lie on a burned body part, it would be wise to apply a dressing before transportation. A dressing will allay pain and help combat shock. If stockpiling plans are carried out, there will be special burn pads in target areas.

Never use boric acid for burns, and tannic acid should not be used on face, hands or genitals. Don't apply absorbent cotton directly and don't remove wax or metal substances that have stuck to the skin. Chemical burns, including those of the eyes, should be washed thoroughly after which compresses may be used. Then put several drops of olive oil, mineral oil or castor oil into the eye.

In the case of sunstroke or heat stroke, get the victim in the shade. Place him on his back, head and shoulders somewhat elevated. Apply cold cloths to the head, cool cloths to the body and rub limbs toward the heart.

In heat exhaustion, give the pa- tient a half teaspoonful of salt in a one-third glass of water. Repeat until a tablespoonful has been administered. Coffee or tea may be administered. Keep him lying down and covered.

VI--Handling of Fracture injuries

(This is another of a series of articles, written especially for Cen- tral Press Association and this newspaper on first aid, a subject gripping the nation in the light of threatened atomic aggression. The articles are based on the American Red Cross First Aid course. First aid principles, applicable to atomic as well as other disasters, are out- lined. The Red Cross offers a 23-hour course free which teaches fully the technique of first aid.)

By Central Press
THE FRACTURE is one of the most serious and delicate injuries with which a first aider must be acquainted. Fractures range from head to toe and the breakage of bones usually is followed by shock. To prevent shock keep the patient lying down and warm.

Two basic rules are (a) do not let broken bone ends move and (b) do not let the adjacent joints move. When in doubt whether a victim has suffered a fracture, assume that he has.

These rules apply to both a sim- ple and a compound fracture. In a compound fracture, there is a wound from the break which pen- etrates the skin. Improper handling will convert a simple fracture into a compound fracture.

In a bomb catastrophe fractures and multiple injuries may be caused by crushing. In such cases, the first aider should immobilize the entire body, splinting damaged extremities gently and caring for shock. People pinned down by debris may suffer injuries to the kidney. Therefore, the victim should be extricated quickly, splinted if there is an indication of a fracture and transported lying flat. Apply no heat.

In the simple fracture, avoid handling the injured part. Immo- bilize the broken ends and the ad- jacent joints with a pillow or blanket or splints, binding them on. The patient should not be moved until this protection has been applied.

Control of bleeding probably will be essential in a compound frac- ture. Use direct pressure and pres- sure at the pressure points men- tioned in a previous article. Do not try to shove the bones into place. A tourniquet is dangerous, as pre- viously pointed out, but if it is used, a sterile dressing should be applied first and bound firmly in place.

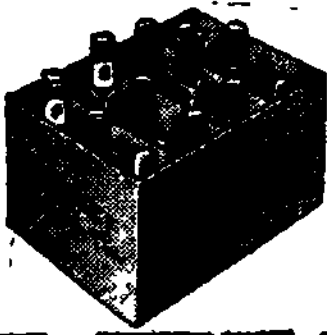

IN THE CASE of a skull frac- ture, keep the patient lying down, head and shoulders raised if the face is flushed. If the face is pale, the head may be lowered slightly. Move him only in a horizontal po- sition. Keep him warm but never apply heat to an unconscious per- son. If there is a wound, apply a compress and bandage.

Fracture of the spine is one of the most serious of injuries and not very easily detected. Pain in the neck or the back may be the only symptom. If the victim can- not move his feet or toes he prob- ably has a broken back.

If examination indicates a per- son has a broken neck, and he must be moved, get a door, a shut- ter, or a wide board. Keep him face upward, but one person should hold his head between two hands to keep it level with the body. The head must never be tilted in any direction. Even after he is strapped to the board with several bandages, sandbags or similar objects must be placed at his head to keep it from rolling.

Any injured person with acute back pain should be considered as having a fractured spine. He should never be lifted to a sitting position. If he must be moved to escape falling walls, place him in the proper position on a blanket, rug, coat or other material and drag him to safety. He probably will be found lying on his abdo- men. Roll him gently on a board or stretcher, face up, and place a pad under the lower spine.

ONE WAY OR ANOTHER—Two mechanics in Rome, Italy, improve a blow-torch stove to prepare spaghetti for their midday meal. Without the traditional food, they could hardly attack the afternoon's chores; Italians depend on the tasty strands for nutrition at low cost.

ONE-FAMILY EPIDEMIC—Last summer, six of the eight DeMars children were stricken with polio in Los Angeles. Now that four of them are well on their way to recovery, they are shown paying a visit to two who are still in iron lungs. Richard, four, left, and Donald, 10, are in the lungs as their three sisters and baby brother give moral support.

ADAPTABLE—Clad in a $2000 chinchilla-trimmed swim suit, Donna Deckard demonstrates an adjustable shower head in San Mateo, Calif., which can be set at any desired height. Both swim suit and shower head were being exhibited at the Peninsula Home Show, and were much admired.

ADVICE TO THE WORLD—A cocker spaniel in West Berlin looks as if he might be quite upset about the cold war. He may be wishing people would stop growling at each other, give up being as stubborn as bulldogs, and cease acting in general like doggone fools. On the other hand, that sad expression can also indicate he's thinking about the good meal he's soon to get.

A WOMAN'S VANITY—Two-month-old Jane Lynn Elwin smiles for the camera, left, in Waukesha, Wis., before going through a hair-raising experience. Her parents decided their daughter needed a change of coiffure. Jane fussed a bit before getting clipped, but a glance in the mirror, right, when it was over convinced the little lass that the change was all to the good.

By ACME NEWSPICTURES

NEW NOSE—The 2200-ton U. S. Navy destroyer, Ernest G. Small, sports a temporary new stub of a bow in Yokosuka, Japan. Her bow was blown off when she hit a mine off North Korea. Nine men were killed and 51 injured in the explosion which blasted a 50-foot hole in the port side. The new bow will do until the ship reaches Pearl Harbor. (U. S. Navy Photo from Acme.)

A DOG, A CAT AND A MOUSE

TWO'S COMPANY—Mrs. Charles L. Woolsey, of Minneapolis, Minn., was annoyed by a field mouse which was making its winter home in her book-case. She borrowed a neighbor's cocker spaniel to flush out the mouse and, at first, everything went just about as it had been planned.

THREE'S A CROWD—While the game of dog and mouse was progressing, a cat crept into the house through an unlocked door, top above. To the cat, such activity was more than the mere game it was to the dog. Although uninvited, she pounced on the quarry and ended the fun.

REAL BROTHERS IN REEL LIFE—Robert Mitchum, right, and his younger brother, John Mallory, rehearse a scene in Hollywood for a film in which they will appear together. John's name is Mitchum, too, but he changed it to Mallory and has hopes of attaining acting success on his own.

OLD WORLD CHARM—Once noted as the gay capital of wine, women and song, Vienna, Austria, today lives on memories. Here, in a view of Schoenbrunn Palace and part of the garden, there is an echo of the past glory, but the city is now a drab, gray shell of a former life.

PEANUT VENDOR—Once you're in Paris, it's a simple matter to get to the peanut stand of Joseph Coletta. The Eiffel Tower is easy to find because of its height. Tour its base and there is Joseph, filling the paper cones, stacked at left, with the tasty morsels. He's also an authority on places of interest to visitors.

Expense Accounts Filed by Candidates

All candidates, with one exception, have filed expense accounts in connection with the recent elections. Of these, only three list expenditures in excess of $150. Expense accounts of less than $150 need not be itemized, according to law, although a return must be filed. Deadline for filing was Thursday, December 6.

Judge Allison D. Wade has filed his expense account in Harrisburg, where judicial candidates are required to file.

Of other candidates, County Commissioners George Seavy and L. L. Johnson list expenditures of less than $150. William H. Olney, successful Democratic candidate for commissioner, lists expenses of $362.25. His opponent, lists less than $150.

Homer B. Bowersox, successful candidate for county treasurer, lists an account of $182.75. His opponent, David Potter, lists less than $150.

Sheriff L. E. Linder, re-elected, lists expenses of $164.25. His Democratic opponent, John Rodgers, has not as yet filed his account.

Other candidates, all of whom filed less than $150 were J. Elmer Peterson, Lyle Russell, Charles H. Briggs, Nell Eggleston and Margaret H. Hartnett.

The Changing Landscapes

RALPH G. ECKERT

Hello folks: The break in the winter weather early this week was a welcome relief to most of the farmers in Warren county. However, with the alternate freezing and thawing, there are signs of erosion on the unprotected fields. This is one of the reasons why it is advisable to plant a cover crop on corn or potato ground.

The savings in topsoil along with maintaining good soil structure will more than repay the small added expense of establishment.

With the help of the SCS, Clarence Johnson, farmer on Russell Scandia road, completed his conservation farm plan. He well knows the value of good pasture and one of the main objectives of his plan will be the improvement and seeding of his pastureland. Also included in his plan is tree planting on some of the steeper ground that is too difficult to farm. Clarence is already practicing good forestry management by removing the undesirable species present, thereby providing wood products for his own use and improving his woodland at the same time.

Blain Mead completed his conservation survey with the help of the SCS on his farm in Mead township. He has some poorly drained soil which will require drainage. He is interested in running beef and wants to utilize every acre according to the capabilities of the soil.

plans have been completed by LeRoy Wiler, Garland farmer, for his two farms. On his home farm, he plans to raise hay type pasture so that any excess pasture not needed may be harvested as hay. LeRoy plans on permanent hay and pasture improvement for his second farm. A diversion is also needed to pick up the excess water which comes from the hillside above his fields. This diversion will take the water off before it can cause a wet condition on his lower fields.

The conservation survey was completed with the help of the SCS on the farm of Mary Kirsch on Priest Hollow road. Poorly drained soils and steep slopes along with poor pastures are the main problems of her farm.

Considering all the hunters that are in Warren county for the deer season and the number of deer that are actually killed—the dumb animal statement has several angles to be considered.

See you all next week.
